Cambodia Goes Communist All the Way

By GENE-GEORGES INAGAKI

TOKYO (AP)—Frustrated in his bid to obtain an international conference to secure neutrality, Cambodia's chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has turned to Communist North Viet Nam.

A radio broadcast in Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, announced today that the Communist regime and Cambodia had agreed to meet in Peking soon to discuss Cambodia's border dispute with South Viet Nam.

Sihanouk was expected to seek recognition of a frontier agreement with South Viet Nam's National Front for Liberation — the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong engaged in a guerrilla war with the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese government.

Cambodia wants a guarantee of its ill-defined frontier with South Viet Nam, which never has been formalized since the 1954 agreement ending the French-Indochina war. Border incidents have been a constant source of friction between the two nations, which do not maintain diplomatic relations.

Sihanouk's overture to North Viet Nam may be based on his belief that the West can not be expected to help him define the frontier. He apparently feels it would be wise to get an official pledge from the Communists whom he believes will win the war in South Viet Nam and eventually gain control of South-east Asia.

It may also be Sihanouk's way of applying pressure on the United States when the two nations meet in New Delhi Dec. 7 to discuss the steady deterioration in relations between them. Sihanouk has moved steadily closer to Communist China since he canceled U.S. economic and military aid last year. He charged that the United States was supporting Cambodian rebels based in South Viet Nam. The United States has denied the charge and said Cambodia was a passageway for Viet Cong troops and arms.

For more than a year the prince has demanded without success that a 14-nation Geneva-type conference be convened to take up the border problem. Except for France, the Western powers did not react sympathetically to the idea.

Sihanouk also wants South Viet Nam to withdraw its claim to two coastal islands.

After a new outbreak of border incidents earlier this month, Sihanouk renewed charges that U.S. planes had attacked Cambodian villages along the South Vietnamese frontier. He threatened to break relations with the United States, recognize North Viet Nam and ask Red China for military aid.

12 Die in Accidents in Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two accidents in the first two days of the long Thanksgiving weekend injured 12 persons and put Arkansas' highway death toll for the holiday at three.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kirchoff, both 72, of Stuttgart and Don Wayne Brown, 22, of Roland.

Mrs. Kirchoff was killed in the collision of two cars on Arkansas 81 near Tarry (Lincoln County) Wednesday night. Her husband died Thursday in a Pine Bluff hospital of injuries received in the accident, which injured 10 other persons.

State Trooper Jack Gorder said the Kirchoff car was driven by the couple's son-in-law, William Malloy, 33, also of Stuttgart.

The other car was driven by Hiram York, 79, of Tarry. Gorder said he said York's car apparently hit the back of the car carrying the Kirchoffs.

Brown was killed Thursday when the truck in which he was riding overturned on Arkansas 200. Two others were injured.

Oscar Quinn, 49, of Roland, was hospitalized at Little Rock where he was listed as being in serious condition. Raymond Herndon, 27, also of Roland, was treated at a hospital and released.

Motorist Yells, Shoots Man, Boy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police say a motorist shot and wounded a man who yelled at him and also an eight-year-old boy playing nearby. Police are still searching for the motorist. Detectives said that John Whitney, 38, yelled at a motorist Thursday who nearly ran him down.

The detectives said the motorist stopped, cursed at Whitney, and then opened fire, hitting Whitney three times. A fourth shot hit Ronald Thomas, playing about 40 feet away. Whitney was hospitalized in serious condition. The boy was treated and released.

Engine Stalls and Pilot Dies in Crash

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—The engine of a light plane stalled during a landing approach and crashed near the El Dorado city airport Thursday killing John B. Soell Sr., 53, of Little Rock.

Soell, former manager of El Dorado Television Station KTVE, was in the broadcast brokerage business in Little Rock. He came here in 1960, was with KTVE three years and opened his own business in Little Rock this past year.

Witnesses said the four-place Piper Comanche fell straight down, crashing into the back yards of houses in a residential area in south El Dorado.

No one else was hurt. The houses were not damaged by the crash.

Soell had been a member of the board of the Arkansas Broadcasters Association. An accomplished show writer, he produced "So Tired" which was recorded by Kay Starr.

Shot at Mars Delayed by Scientists

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Technical problems with the spacecraft today forced postponement of an attempt to launch Mariner 4 to Mars to take pictures and probe scientific secrets.

No new launching date was set immediately.

The launch crew had only a 3-hour, 13-minute favorable period ending at 12:41 p.m. EST in which to fire the Atlas-Agena rocket to achieve the desired trajectory. When the trouble could not be corrected in time, the shot was called off for the day.

The rocket is to propel Mariner 4 across 326 million miles of space for a brief encounter with the red planet next July 14.

If successful, the unmanned craft will skim within 8,600 miles of Mars and radio to earth the first close-up information ever obtained from the planet. Many astronomers believe that a basic form of life such as vegetation exists there.

Mariner 4 will not be able to detect life. Its main purpose is to collect data that engineers need for designing life-seeking spacecraft that the United States hopes to land on Mars in 1969.

Project scientists hope that Mariner 4 will succeed where Mariner 3 failed an identical assignment Nov. 5.

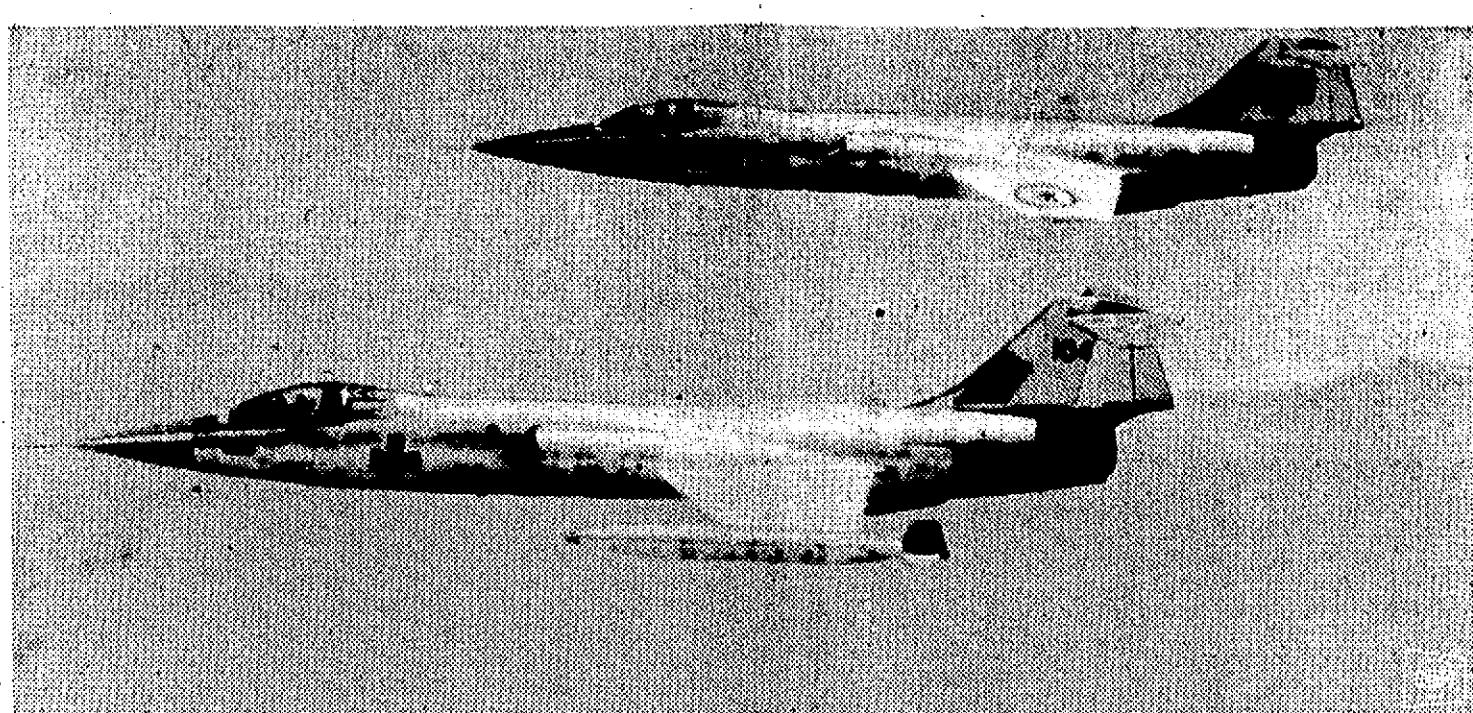

Mariner 3 fizzled when its glass shroud collapsed within five minutes after launching. The shroud was unable to drop off and imprisoned the spacecraft, preventing it from unfolding its power-gathering solar panels and from achieving sufficient speed for the Mars trip.

Mariner 3 now is in lifeless orbit about the sun.

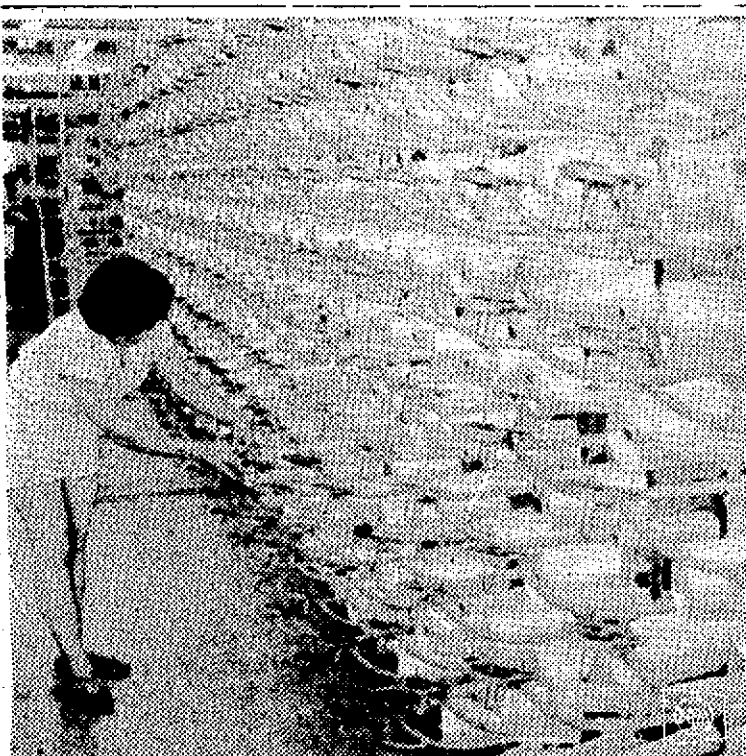

A magnesium-strengthened shield was devised for Mariner 4.

The two launchings were scheduled because of the complexity of the mission and because Mars is in position for a launching from earth only one month out of each 25. Mars won't be within shooting range again until December 1966.

Mariner 4's television camera was designed to take 22 pictures during the 30-minute flyby next summer.

Between Now and January 1 More Food Will Be Munched Than at Any Other Time

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer

This season of the year is a lot of things, including being the Munching Season. Between now and New Year's Day more food will be consumed by Americans in-between and on-top of regular meals than at any other time.

What is your favorite munching food, which some people call tidbits. (Definition: Tidbit—when you bite it, it bites you and you don't know when to stop.) At baseball games and circuses peanuts score high, and at the movies it's usually pop corn.

However, at home before the TV set or in casual conversation, cashew nuts are often the piece de resistance.

Would it surprise you to know that this delicious nut with a salty sweet flavor is poisonous when picked as it is closely related to the American poison ivy and poison sumac? Me, too. But we don't have to worry, as the outer shell and irritating oil that cause all the trouble are carefully removed by the natives of the areas where the nuts are grown.

What are those areas? The spreading cashew tree was first found in South America and then taken to Africa and India. Today, cashew nuts have become one of India's major exports with 100 million pounds being shipped to other countries every year. Of that amount the United States receives 80 per cent.

The evergreen tree from which cashew nuts are obtained from 20 to 40 feet in height, and during the two or three months of its blooming period, the leathery green leaves are joined by clusters of pink, red, purple, and white flowers.

On the same stem with the nut is an edible fruit called the cashew apple, a pear-shaped fruit similar in taste to the apple. The native population of areas which cashew trees grow value the apple as highly as the nut. A refreshing drink is made from its juice, and preserves are made from the whole fruit.

How are these tasty nuts processed so that we can safely enjoy them? Remember that the nuts and the fruit are on the same stem. So, after the natives pick the fruit, the nuts are detached and are dried in the sun. (It takes about 25 pounds of apples to get one pound of nuts.) Then, the nuts are roasted over an open fire, and in the process all poisonous properties are safely removed.

Besides the nuts and the fruit of the cashew tree, practically every other part of it is useful too. The wood is soft and lightweight but strong, so it's ideal for shipping crates and boats. Charcoal is made from it also. The tree yields a gum that is similar to gum arabic.

That pungent brown oil unfit for human consumption is put to good use as an effective insecticide and is used in varnish to protect wood against termites. After the poisons are driven off by heating, it also makes a high-grade machine oil.

Yes, the cashew tree is versatile in its many uses, but it is the nuts that most of us are "nuts" about. Aren't they your first choice when a can of mixed nuts are opened? And have you tried them in cookies?

Course for Income Tax Consultants

An income tax short course for tax consultants will be held at the Diamond Cafe in Hope on December 2 and 3. Calvin Caldwell, county agent, has announced. The course is primarily for tax consultants dealing with farm and small business.

Conference on Economy of W. Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State George W. Ball flies to Paris tonight for talks there and in London with European leaders and U.S. officials on economic and military problems confronting the Atlantic Allies.

Key topics for Ball's conferences are expected to be the financial policies of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and the U.S. plan for a multilateral nuclear force, jointly owned and manned by the various NATO countries.

The undersecretary's trip comes in the wake of a severe British financial crisis revolving about Wilson's attempts to bolster the pound sterling and improve his nation's international payments standing.

And it comes less than one week after Wilson sharply criticized the proposed joint nuclear weapons force in a speech to the House of Commons on Monday.

Despite Wilson's stand, and the continuing opposition to the MLF project by French President Charles de Gaulle, the United States and West Germany — its two chief backers — agreed Thursday that the NATO nuclear fleet can be established.

In a joint communique following talks, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder expressed hope that agreement on the multilateral force "will be reached soon and that as many member nations of the alliance as possible would participate."

Rusk and Schroeder were reported to feel that Wilson's speech may have been delivered partially to placate the left wing of his Labor party and partly to establish a bargaining position when he comes here Dec. 7-8 for talks with U.S. officials including President Johnson.

Hubert Might Be Forced in Background

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the capital's favorite guessing games is whether Hubert H. Humphrey's incandescent spirit will be obscured by Lyndon B. Johnson's long shadow.

Johnson himself knows the hazards. Like Humphrey he was one of the most celebrated personages on Capitol Hill, yet all but vanished as John F. Kennedy's vice president. "Whatever happened to Lyndon Johnson?" was the joke going the rounds then.

From the beginning, vice presidents had a lost feeling. The first, John Adams, felt he held "the most insignificant office that ever the invention of man contrived or his imagination conceived."

John Nance Garner, summing up his job in 1934, likened the vice presidency to a spare tire: as long as everything rolls smoothly, little attention is paid to it.

But even then a trend had begun to give the vice president more responsibilities and duties. Herbert Hoover once said he was the first chief executive to enlarge the field of the vice president by having Charles Curtis attend Cabinet sessions "so he would know what was going on in the executive arm of the government, and would be better prepared to take over the presidency if needed."

Payola in Broadcasting to Be Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission ordered today a closed-door investigation of payola and hidden advertising in broadcasting.

The investigation by the seven-man commission follows what the FCC described as "allegations from many sources" that payola — the taking of payments for favors on the air — continues to exist.

The same applies to what the FCC calls plugola — hidden advertising in broadcasting.

The FCC said it also has complaints that some record companies and other firms have been making direct and indirect secret payments to disc jockeys and others "for playing or influencing the playing of records" and secret payments for including certain matter in their broadcasts.

The inquiry will be a nonpublic one, the FCC said, "unless the commission orders public sessions to the extent that it determines that public interest will be served thereby."

That procedure, the FCC said, "is in line with its established practice in investigations of this nature."

If the allegations of payola and related practices are true, the FCC said, they would violate the Communications Act — as amended several years ago after a congressional investigation of broadcasting — and certain sections of FCC rules.

Demon Rum Is Making a Comeback

By JACK RUTLEDGE

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rum, once a universal drink which languished in favor when temperance leaders made it a "demon" and a whipping boy, is making a comeback.

In the last decade or so, rum's popularity has grown sharply, particularly in the United States where consumption has doubled since 1955, though it still accounts for only 2.1 per cent of distilled spirits consumed.

The Distilled Spirits Institute, calculating from tax returns, reported U.S. sales in 1963 of 2.1 million cases.

Rising affluence in Europe and industrialized nations elsewhere, the growing acceptance of the Western cocktail and rum's adaptability in this regard have worked in its favor.

With Cuba out of the picture, Puerto Rico leads all rum producers with its scores of famous brands.

Made from sugar cane, rum comes in varieties ranging from 80 to a jolting 160 proof. The tamer varieties are favored in the United States, the greatest consuming country.

Woman Observes 100th Birthday

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Pearl Cole, physically frail but militant in spirit, marked her 100th birthday today.

On the eve of the anniversary she told a reporter, "When I was a girl, civilization was just like it is now — only it's gotten a whole lot worse."

Mrs. Cole, born at Lealand, Mich., in 1864, came to Texas in 1882 and has lived in Dallas since 1885. She makes her home with a daughter, Mrs. G. E. McLeland.

Cash in Bank Not Important to Families

By NEIL GILBRIDE

AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Money in the bank" is no longer so important to the average family, the Labor Department says, even though the typical urban family is saving twice as much now as in 1950.

Instead of putting cash in the bank, most families are saving in different ways — sinking their money into life insurance and housing.

This is a key finding of the department's first detailed study of consumer habits in 15 years.

The study also shows that most Americans are giving more money away, in the form of gifts and charitable contributions.

"The average family is less impelled to accumulate cash savings and other liquid assets to tide them over emergencies," said a report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"Moreover, as home ownership has increased, the family's equity in a home and its equipment has constituted a growing share of its savings," the report added.

Another major form of savings today is in insurance, including Social Security. Group insurance plans sponsored under labor agreements provide "an almost automatic form of workers' savings," the report said.

The study compared consumer spending habits from 1950 to 1961. It was made to modernize the government's consumer price index which is the chief means of determining typical living costs. Many labor agreements are based on the month-to-month changes in the figures.

The most significant change in spending habits found in the survey was in housing. The average urban family spent nearly $1,600 for housing in 1960-61. That was about $550 more per year than in 1950.

Social Security and other pension plans accounted for 53 per cent of the average family's annual insurance spending of $324 in 1960-61, the survey showed. The corresponding figure in 1950 was 31 per cent, it said.

Overall, average consumer spending jumped 42 per cent from 1950 to 1960-61 to a total of $5,390 a year.

After allowing for price increases in the same period, there was a net gain of about 14 per cent in added goods and services, the report said.

Although federal, state and local taxes had soared 140 per cent since 1950, the average family's after-tax income still rose 51 per cent from $3,910 to $5,906, it said.

In 1950, families used 97 per cent of their income for current living expenses but by 1961, the figure had dropped to 91 per cent.

"Gifts to friends and relatives and contributions to religious, welfare, educational and similar institutions averaged $303 per family in 1960-61, almost double the 1950 amount," the study said.

Another important change since 1950 was that the average family had to spend considerably less for food. The figure dropped from nearly 30 per cent in 1950 to 24 per cent in 1960-61, thus freeing that much money for other spending or savings investments.

Congo Killings Now 150, More Bodies Found

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The discovery of new victims of slaughter by Congolese rebels has raised the total of known white victims to 97. Unofficial reports of another rebel massacre could mean nearly 150 foreigners were killed.

With the U.S.-Belgian rescue mission, which dramatically saved more than 1,600 white hostages in Stanleyville and Paulis, scheduled to close today, the fate of perhaps 300 whites still behind rebel lines depends on the mercenary-led Congolese forces.

There had been reports the huge American C130 transport planes might ferry Belgian paratroopers for a drop at Bunia, on the eastern Congo border, or Watsa, to the northeast.

But Belgian Premier Theo Lefevre said in Brussels that the rescue mission would be completed today.

The International Red Cross announced Friday night that 45 whites, including four Spanish nuns, were killed in a final rampage in Stanleyville's African quarter before government troops seized the section, on the left bank of the Congo River.

The bodies were mutilated beyond recognition, with throats cut and cannibalism suspected in several bases, a Red Cross spokesman said.

"It was a charnel house — house of dead — people were slain on top of other bodies," one refugee said. The remains were buried Friday with full military honors.

The massacre was discovered Friday when government soldiers crossed to the left bank in an effort to flush out rebels still holding much of that part of the city.

One of five survivors was Camille Borry of Belgium, who said: "We bought our lives with beer and money. The killing began in front of the main market Wednesday. The sisters had nothing to give them."

African leaders and the Communist world continued to protest the U.S.-Belgium mission as "armed intervention."

At United Nations Headquarters in New York, the African group drafted a formal request for a Security Council meeting on the Congo situation. The Congo dissented.

The request would not be presented, however, until the governments in Africa gave the go-ahead.

Pierre M'bale, charge d'affaires of the Congolese delegation, said that Belgium and the United States carried out a mission to rescue their nationals and it "was neither an act of aggression nor an act of unilateral intervention."

M'bale said his government had called on no government to put down the Congolese rebellion and pointed out it was not brought before the Security Council when Tanganyika, Uganda, Zanzibar and Gabon got their former colonial rulers "to put down their rebellions."

A U.S. Air Force C130 came under heavy rebel fire as it brought the last white survivors out of Paulis, a railroad town near the Congo's northeast border.

Several hundred rebels made a new attack on Stanleyville Airport, where the American transports were grouping for the flight south to Kamina, in Katanga Province, last stop on their way out of Africa.

Belgian paratroopers joined Congolese forces in repelling the attack. No casualty figures were given.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It all started because a theater chain operator became bored on long flights from the East Coast to Hollywood.

David Flexer operated movie houses in and near Memphis, Tenn., and during his many trips to see the Hollywood product he mused on how a plane cabin resembled a projection room. Why not show movies to occupy the dreary hours in flight?

That was in 1957. Flexer spent four years and a million dollars to devise a method of showing movies on aircraft. The system had to be lightweight, compact, automatic and meet the approval of the Federal Aviation Agency. The results were inflight motion pictures, which began service on TWA flights to Europe in 1961.

With inflight you see a movie much as in a theater. The stewardess hangs a screen at the head of the aisle — one for first class, one for tourist. The cabin is darkened and the movie begins to unroll from a projection hole near the ceiling. Each passenger is equipped with earphones for the sound. The sound is the least effective part of the system; I found it difficult to catch the British accents in "Murder Ahoy." But inflight says it is installing new earphones that will give a better, stereophonic sound.

The success of inflight gave rise to other systems. American Airlines has devised Astrovision, which gives the passenger the option of watching a movie on an individual nine-inch TV-type screen or using earphones to listen to classical or pop music on stereo. Continental Airlines uses a similar system.

As added gimmicks, American can use its screens to give passengers a panorama of the ground below via a camera in the airplane nose — or to pick up commercial telecasts.

Hot competition for the flying customer has given rise to a battle of words as each airline touts its system in ads.

The airlines have made multimillion-dollar commitments to movie dollars, and the practice is likely to continue spreading to long-distance flights. Short hops are impractical for films. A Los Angeles-San Francisco flight of 42 minutes now scarcely provides time for serving coffee.

Film bookings may be a problem as time goes on. Frequent travelers are already switching reservations to avoid seeing the same film twice, and with Hollywood's continued emphasis on the sexy and the sensational, it is not easy to find enough attractions to appeal to the family trade.

The best attractions for the jet travelers are musicals and comedies. Heavy dramas are not too popular.

So far, however, nobody is known to have walked out on one.

Cash Farm Receipts Lag in Arkansas

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the three-quarter mark of the year, Arkansas farmers are running a little behind last year in cash receipts from their farm marketings.

The Agriculture Department reports that up to Oct. 1, Arkansas farmers made $369,863,000 from sales of crops and livestock, compared with $396,011,000 for the first nine months of 1963.

Almost all the decline is in the sale of crops. The department report shows livestock sales for the 9-month period this year totaled $229,204,000, compared with $220,700,000. But receipts from crops are down to $140,659,000, as against $175,311,000 a year ago.

The department explained that countrywide receipts from sales of cotton—Arkansas' principal crop—were down almost $200 million from a year ago due chiefly to a lag in ginnings.

This indicates that receipts from this crop likely would show again for the final quarter. The department said how- ever, that there also was a decline in cotton prices for 1964.

Looking ahead to 1965, the Department said the outlook is for continued stability in farm income—close to the level which has prevailed since 1961. In other words, Arkansas farmers probably will have about the same income in 1965 as in 1964 and 1963.

The Office of Education has earmarked $2,289,317 for vocational education schools in Arkansas.

The allocation is from a $168 million appropriation for vocational education work in the various states under a new program authorized by Congress in 1963. Funds for the new program—which consolidated and modernized several previously existing programs—were appropriated this year.

The law requires, however, that before a state may receive its share of the funds it must submit a state plan for vocational education to the office of education for approval by the Commissioner of Education.

The new program stresses the teaching of and training in subjects and fields which will aid students in obtaining jobs. The stress will be on teaching of those skills needed in business and industry, rather than on those which might be useful around the home, such as cooking and sewing.

Teacher by Day, Chorus Girl at Night

By JOLIE LUELOFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Dede Thomas doesn't see what's so unusual about being a school-teacher by day and a Broadway chorus girl by night.

The red-haired Dayton, Ohio lass, 26, who appears in "What Makes Sammy Run?" spends two or three days a week doing substitute teaching at Manhattan's Junior High School 79.

"I don't think this is really extraordinary if you look at the number of hours in the day," she says.

"I'm at the theater only three and a half hours in the evening and I get home about 11:45. It's not as if I worked in a cocktail lounge until four in the morning. I usually get up at 6:45 a.m. and that leaves a full day ahead."

She says that her husband, Jimmy Campbell, wasn't very enthusiastic about the idea. "But," she explains, "I said to him, 'Jim, I have all this time — what am I going to do with it?' and he agreed."

Their schedules almost coincide. He plays in the orchestra of the Broadway hit, "Hello Dolly!" in the evening and attends rehearsals and acting classes during the day.

When Dede was a dance major at Ohio State University, she carried a full study load and danced every night. "I guess that's where I got into the swing," she says.

After working as a secretary in New York for a short time, she got a teaching license and I rested until six o'clock. I still felt tired, but I got up and took a cold shower. I examined my face in the mirror and shaved again. I got dressed and went downstairs. I left word with the desk clerk that I'd be in the dining room.

I was just having coffee when George Dundy arrived. I finished my coffee and we left. A cab deposited me at the door of the Purple Pussycat. I got a table at about the same location I'd had the night before. I had the same waiter. He recognized me.

The rest of the evening was a repetition of the previous night. I kept surveying the audience just in case Emery did slip in. I could have sensed Elena's appearance from the reaction of the audience. But I watched her anyway, making sure that I wasn't repeating my mistake of the previous night before I gave full attention to her performance.

Her red hair swirled around her shoulders as she danced. Once I thought I saw her look directly at me and wink, but then I might have been guilty of wishful thinking.

She was barely off the stage when the waiter was standing beside me. "Pardon me, sir," he said, "Miss Drake wants to know if you'll come back and see her for a minute."

"Why not?" I said.

"I made my way through the crowd to the back, then past the rest rooms and into the corridor. I knocked on her door.

"Come in," she called.

I opened the door and stepped inside. She was sitting much as she had been the night before. And there was two double champagne cocktails on the table. Only I hadn't ordered them.

"Hi, honey," she said. "Come on in. The champagne is waiting."

"How'd you know I was here?"

"The waiter?"

"Yeah. I told him to let me know if you came into the club again. I figured I owed you a drink."

"Thanks," I said. I lifted my glass. "To you."

We both drank. She glanced at me over the top of her glass.

"You followed me home last night, didn't you?"

"That almost caught me off guard. 'What do you mean?'"

"I saw you on the street across from my apartment. Why didn't you ring my bell?"

"It was a little late," I said.

"There was a fight on the street a little later. Were you part of that, too?"

I took a deep breath and plunged in. "Yes. Someone shot at me. I guess he must have mistaken me for someone else."

"That must've been terrible," she said sympathetically. "Did the cops give you a rough time?"

"Not too bad. I had to give a statement and then they let me go."

"Did you tell them you were taught physical education and hygiene. Then she joined the chorus of "Bye Bye Birdie."

Being on tour with the show didn't put a stop to her teaching.

"We had seven kids in the show," Dede explains, "and they needed a tutor, so I volunteered. 'When Birdie' closed, I came back to New York. There wasn't much happening on Broadway, so I took another job teaching."

there because you followed me home?"

"Of course not."

"Then why is a cop suddenly tailing me?"

"I don't know," I said. "Maybe he's just a romantic cop."

"You are a cop," she said.

"In a way. I'm a postal inspector."

"A post office cop. You should see some of the fan mail I get."

"Why don't you turn the letters in to the local post office? They'll work on it."

"Who worries about letters from creeps? Is this part of your job?"

"Remember me? I'm the cop who lost his man last night because he was busy watching you."

She hesitated a moment. "Are you still interested in Richard Emery?"

"It's my job."

"He isn't calling himself Richard Emery, but Emery Richards. I met him through Pete Jackson and he kept hanging around the club. Every night he was there. He was a creep, too."

"Did he ever tell you anything about himself?"

"Nothing except to say his family was wealthy and he was wealthy. But he certainly didn't spend very much of his wealth if he had any. So I dropped him."

"He was right about two things. His family is wealthy and he's on the way to becoming wealthy—but he stole his, committing a few crimes on the way. How did you happen to know Jackson?"

"He was a friend of my brother."

"I don't suppose," I said, "that you know where Emery is staying at the moment?"

"Sure, I do. San Francisco."

Gave His Life Trying to Aid the Needy

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a breed of American doctors who gather the world's poorest humanity in their hands and who leave their mark on the minds of men from the mountains of Southeast Asia to the steaming forests of Africa and South America.

And, save for the moments when they dramatically die, the Tom Dooleys and the Paul Carlsons labor largely unknown and unacclaimed by their fellow Americans.

One such dramatic moment came this week in a place called Lumumba Square in a city called Stanleyville in a country called the Congo. It was a strange place to die for a man from a more common place called Rolling Hills, Calif.

Dr. Paul Carlson — a man with something to give — had chosen to be there because he felt he was needed there.

So it is for a growing number of American doctors who forsake convenient American living and rewarding medical practice at home to serve for nearly nothing in the wildernesses of the world.

There are more than 2,000 American doctors at work today — strange transplants into the frustrations of poverty, among diseases they never see at home, in places where suspicion is the rule and trust must be won, and where the most important mail from home might be a package of surplus drug samples.

Like Carlson, they may work in a one-man, cinder-block hospital in a jungle clearing, they may find their day beginning before dawn and ending beyond midnight, they may find the simplest needs for clean water and trained help hard to come by. They certainly find no shortage of patients.

For Carlson — sole doctor for 100,000 Africans — the need was clear when he visited the Congo in 1961. He closed up practice in California, trained in Britain and went to answer that need. He almost certainly felt that even his hardest efforts were only a drop in the bucket of African poverty.

So it is for some 700 Protestant and some 50 Catholic medical missionaries who try to cope with the brutal facts of malnutrition and disease, who see a woman bear six children knowing perhaps only one will survive to adolescence with normal mental capacity.

And so it is for the 150 doctors who serve under Care-Medico programs and the 35 to 40 who put in intensive tours for the medical ship Hope.

Others work for the Peace Corps and other U.S. government agencies and the emphasis is often on training native talent to take over when the Americans go home.

The American Medical Association says it receives hundreds of queries from doctors asking how they can help overseas. It also has a long list of requests for medical help from Malaysia to Nigeria.

To help the American doctor abroad, some 35 groups collect old medical journals and drug samples from doctors to send to missionaries.

What Carlson saw in Africa were the commonplace, awful contagions of yaws and leprosy, and epidemics of infectious disease that merely trouble affluent Americans but kill the undernourished of other continents.

To the Africans, men like Carlson bring more than hope. They bring life.

To Americans, the way Carlson lived and served should likely be more important than the way he died, caught in an unfortunate tide of political distress. To Carlson's father, perhaps it was most simple of all:

"I'm not as much proud as humble," he said. "What he's supposed to die for — this does not make me proud — it makes me humble."

"DEAR ABBY"

WHY ELSE?

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: You told that 26-year-old sports' widow to be patient. Well, I have been patient for many years. I am now 57, and I'm STILL patient, but I am also still a sports' widow. When my husband's legs and wind gave out, he gave up sports that required running, and turned to golf, which he plays from a cart, weather permitting.

When he comes home, he collapses and I serve his meals on a tray, while he watches sports events on TV, with the volume turned up high enough to transport him to the event he's watching. He is now planning retirement to a climate which will enable him to play golf every day. He claims his reason for playing golf to keep him "in shape." In shape for what?

Still A Sports' Widow

Dear Sports' Widow: To play more golf.

Dear Abby: With the holidays coming up, I wish you'd mention something in your column about my pet holiday gripe, which is shared by many. People who give parties in the basement.

You get all dolled up for a party, and when you get there you spend the evening in the basement. Even though it is nicely furnished and decorated, it still smells musty and it's damp. Last year I had one cold after another from sitting in those basement recreation rooms. I can't understand people with lovely, comfortable homes (upstairs) who entertain their guests in the basement. Are they afraid someone

Boat Capsizes, Two Drowned

BRINKLEY, Ark. (AP)—Louis C. Bagwell, 52, of England, drowned Thursday in a lake near here when the boat he and a companion were fishing from overturned.

Officers said Bagwell and Carroll Covington, also of England, were dumped from the boat when it hit an object in the water. They said when Covington made it to shore and started to go back to rescue Bagwell, he had disappeared. His body was recovered a short time later.

In 1884, at a Cotton Centennial in New Orleans, Arkansas fruits were voted best. One apple from Washington County won first place over 22,000 others.

will get a spot on the rug? HATES BASEMENTS

Dear Hates: Probably. Some lower level recreation rooms are every bit as comfortable as what's upstairs, but many are not. And people who have gone to the expense of converting their basements into entertaining areas are the last to feel the dampness.

Dear Abby: I did a foolish thing and now I'm in a mess. I accepted an engagement ring from a boy before he went into the Navy. I didn't wear my ring while I worked at a resort last summer. There I met another man who made me realize that I didn't love the sailor after all. HE gave me an engagement ring, too. I think about the sailor boy when I'm alone, but I prefer the other one when I'm with him. What to do?

MIXED UP

Dear Mixed: Return both rings until the gob makes port. Then, when the game's even again, pick the winner (if, by that time, either are still in the running).

Dear Abby: Your stand against serving cupcakes to the neighborhood kiddies instead of the birthday cake (which is saved for the family to enjoy later) hit me wrong. I have four children under 15, and I used to bake and decorate large lovely cakes for the children's birthday parties, and I'd wind up throwing the cake away after the kids got through playing in it. Now I decorate individual cupcakes and put a candle in the center of each one, and I never have to throw away anything but the paper. Each child gets to blow out his own candle, which is a lot more sanitary than letting the birthday child blow out all the candles and spit all over the cake, which is then cut up and served (germs and all) to each child.

Ullman Hottest Hockey Player

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Norm Ullman is the hottest thing on National Hockey League ice these days and his goal-scoring spurt is helping the Detroit Red Wings stay on top of the NHL.

Ullman, who has 10 goals in his club's first 19 games, clicked for his fifth and sixth in the last four games Thursday night as Detroit downed Montreal 3-1. In other NHL games, Boston bombed New York 6-1 and Toronto stopped Chicago 4-2.

Boosts State as Equal to Razorbacks

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) - If state Rep. Roscoe Brown has his way, Arkansas would be billed as Indian land as well as Razorback country on the state's auto license tags.

Johnny Harrell, manager of radio station KJWH at Camden, and Rep. David Prsor of Camden suggested earlier this week that the slogan, "Land of Opportunity" be taken off the plates and the one, "Razorback Country" be put on.

The idea was brought out after the Arkansas Razorbacks defeated Texas Tech 17-0 for a 10-0 season.

Brown, of Jonesboro, wired Pryor today that the words, "Arkansas State Indian Land" should be put on top of the tags and that the school emblem be stamped on the plates.

The Razorback slogan would be on the bottom, where the current slogan is.

"Don't get me wrong," said Brown. "I'm a booster of the Razorbacks. But after all, the Indians are undefeated too."

The Indians completed their season with a 7-0-2 record.

Quick Action Protects the U.S. Dollar

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Speedy defense is counted upon to protect the world's two most important currencies - the American dollar and the British pound.

And the speed with which the two nations moved against a speculative run started against the pound also is seen as a measure of the danger which such a run posed for the whole delicate balance of international finance.

London's move was drastic - a quick raising of the Bank of England's lending rate to 7 per cent from 5 per cent. Washington's move was moderate - an equally quick raising of the Federal Reserve's discount rate to 4 per cent from 3 1/2 per cent.

This was a gesture of warning that the dollar would be defended from raiders rather than a real deterrent to any possible big loss of dollars overseas.

Higher interest rates at these basic levels is likely to mean higher borrowing costs in time through most of the economies of the two nations. And that in turn can dampen some business expansion, some consumer buying.

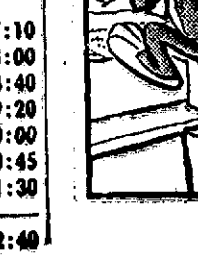

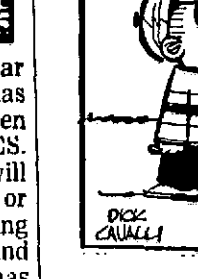

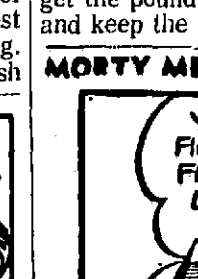

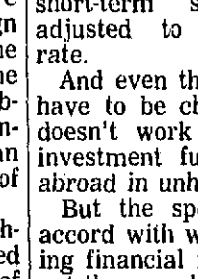

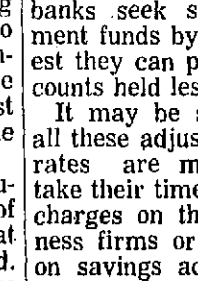

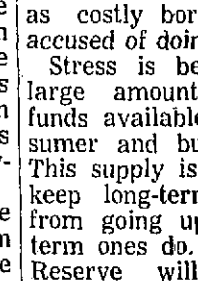

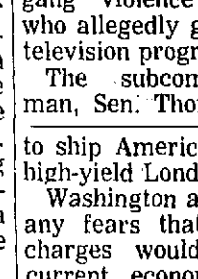

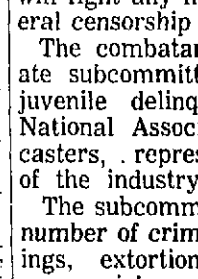

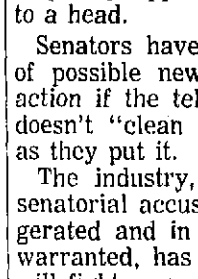

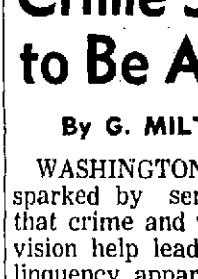

Neither is eager for that. The real aim is quite different. In London's case it is to halt the outflow of the pound sterling because imports too exports to a dangerous degree. In Washington's case it is to hold the outflow of dollars to a modest stream rather than a possible torrent.

That Britain's financial troubles should affect the cost of Americans doing business at home might seem far fetched. But the dollar and the pound are used as the standards of foreign exchange for most of the world's trade this side of the Iron Curtain. If the pound wobbles, the dollar can't escape entirely unscathed - nor can many of the other currencies of the world.

That probably is why Washington moved with unexpected speed, relying on the ounce of prevention of raising interest charges on short-term lending. That was to ward off any rush

Dispute Over Crime Shows to Be Aired

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) - A row sparked by senatorial charges that crime and violence on television help lead to juvenile delinquency apparently is coming to a head.

Senators have started talking of possible new laws to force action if the television industry doesn't "clean its own house," as they put it.

The industry, contending the senatorial accusations are exaggerated and in some cases unwarranted, has served notice it will fight any move toward federal censorship of programs.

The combatants are the Senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency and the National Association of Broadcasters, representing the bulk of the industry.

The subcommittee has cited a number of crimes including killings, extortion, robbery and gang violence by youngsters who allegedly got the idea from television programs.

The subcommittee's chairman, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has ordered a massive project to monitor every program aired in the Washington area, to get evidence for subsequent public hearings.

No date has been announced for the hearings, but they are expected to get under way well before spring.

NAB's Code Review Board, an organization of nine broadcasters administering its Code of Fair Practices, has scheduled meetings here Dec. 9-10. The subcommittee's Oct. 27 report to the Senate contended that television programs excessively featuring crime, violence and brutality are a proved factor in juvenile delinquency although not the only one.

"The patience of Congress, though considerable, is not endless," the report said in warning.

Howard H. Bell, NAB code director, told a reporter by telephone from New York City the subcommittee report made a number of unwarranted allegations, including one that many broadcasters seem to violate the code with impunity.

The subcommittee praised the code's content but said it was poorly enforced and that many violators continued to display the NAB "seal of fair practice" in advertising which supposedly attests compliance with the code.

Bell denied that enforcement of the code is lax. He said many radio and television stations have lost their right to display the seal, and that the industry is taking steps to sharpen the sting.

Bell said the industry does not claim it is perfect, but that it can and does police itself effectively, strives to improve its standards, and will resist any government regulation of the content of its programs.

He said any such legislation would violate constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and of the press.

It may be some time before all these adjustments in interest rates are made. Banks may take their time about raising the charges on their loans to business firms or the interest paid on savings accounts. Prices of short-term securities will be adjusted to the new discount rate.

And even this new rate might have to be changed again if it doesn't work as expected and investment funds start flowing abroad in unhealthy volume.

But the speed and apparent accord with which the two leading financial nations acted may get the pound back on even keel and keep the dollar there.

Dispute Over Crime Shows to Be Aired

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) - A row sparked by senatorial charges that crime and violence on television help lead to juvenile delinquency apparently is coming to a head.

Senators have started talking of possible new laws to force action if the television industry doesn't "clean its own house," as they put it.

The industry, contending the senatorial accusations are exaggerated and in some cases unwarranted, has served notice it will fight any move toward federal censorship of programs.

The combatants are the Senate subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency and the National Association of Broadcasters, representing the bulk of the industry.

The subcommittee has cited a number of crimes including killings, extortion, robbery and gang violence by youngsters who allegedly got the idea from television programs.

The subcommittee's chairman, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has ordered a massive project to monitor every program aired in the Washington area, to get evidence for subsequent public hearings.

No date has been announced for the hearings, but they are expected to get under way well before spring.

NAB's Code Review Board, an organization of nine broadcasters administering its Code of Fair Practices, has scheduled meetings here Dec. 9-10. The subcommittee's Oct. 27 report to the Senate contended that television programs excessively featuring crime, violence and brutality are a proved factor in juvenile delinquency although not the only one.

"The patience of Congress, though considerable, is not endless," the report said in warning.

This Chain

... surely it is capable of drawing a heavy load. Another chain might hold a tiny cross or a precious gem in place. Still another might bind my arms in helplessness. But the old adage is true. "No chain is stronger than its weakest link." One link, the weakest link, governs the strength. For one weak link the heavy load breaks loose, or something precious is lost; or the manacled arms are free again. There, too, are chains of character, good habits, religious morals that make us strong and dependable in difficult hours. These attributes are as links of the chain. For life is of a piece and every day is part of the chain that counts toward everlasting. Then anchor the picture of the chain in the gallery of your meditation. Then form good habits that hold us firmly in constructive toil. Attend church regularly and support God's cause with your means. Put goodness, integrity and truthfulness into your personal character chain. Let God's church and His faithful help you forge a chain of strength and usefulness.

ity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.
